SEAKEEPER WINS AWARD AT SUPERYACHT FORUM

The accolades keep coming for Seakeeper. The company recently won the 2011 American Superyacht Forum Innovation Award. The award was just introduced this year.

"Winning the Innovation Award is a testament to the uniqueness of our product line," said John Kermet, Seakeeper sales and marketing VP. "It also highlights Seakeeper's applicability in the superyacht sector, where we've been supplying products since mid-2008. We're very excited about this award."

Five companies made short and interactive Technical/Innovation Presentations (TIPs) to showcase the latest technological innovations for the superyacht industry. Each speaker had 10 minutes to wow the audience with a presentation. The winner was voted on by American Superyacht Forum delegates who not only voted on the most innovative product, but the most interesting presentation.

John Kermet made the presentation for Seakeeper. It focused on the gyro's technology and its current and future superyacht applications in vessels that range from 100' to 65m.
